CURING MEAT FOR HOME USE

One of Essentials for Good Meat is Properly Designed Smokehouse—It Should Be Fireproof.

Why pay 25 cents a pound for smoked meats when you can smoke it for nothing with a little hickory or maple wood or a few coals? Not many years ago when most farmers knew how to butcher and cure meats few of them were without a smokehouse and a meat storing room of some kind, writes Leah Ruth Lippincott in Farmers Mail and Breeze. The development of the centralized plant or packing house has caused a great majority of our farmers to lose the art of home curing. It will be profitable, with the present high prices of cured meat and market values of live stock to cure meat for home use or even the local trade.

This should be a fireproof building. The accompanying figure, furnished by the North Dakota Agricultural college, shows the side section of a concrete structure that is about the right size for the average farm. This house also is suitable for storing meat. It is cool and sanitary. If a good lock and burglar alarm are put on the door the meat will be comparatively safe from thieves.

The fire box is placed on the outside of the building for convenience in controlling and replenishing the fire and smoke. There is little danger of the meat overheating with this arrangement. This house will cost about $65 with cement at 50 cents a hundred and lumber at $30 a thousand. This does not include the labor of construction. Here is the bill of material:

Forty-eight sacks of cement, 4 loads (1½ yards) of sand, 8 loads of stone, one door, two 2 by 8 by 12s for door frames, three 2 by 4 by 14s for meat hooks. Lumber for forms: Eighteen 2 by 4 by 10s; sixteen 2 by 4 by 8s; 600 board feet sheathing.

Hard Labor.

"So, you want more money, do you?" remarked the stern parent. "Why don't you go to work? You never earned a cent in your life." "Why, father, how you do talk," rejoined the young man. "I'm sure no one ever worked harder than I do in trying to get a dollar out of you now and then."

PETS OF FAMOUS SONGSTERS

Grisi Owned a Monkey, Lind a Mocking Bird and Patti Was Fond of a Parrot.

Of all classes of humanity in the world female singers are the most addicted to keeping pets, London Tit-Bits states. In the days of her prime, some years after her marriage with Mario, Mme. Grisi was the proprietor of one of the smallest and prettiest monkeys imaginable. It was a specimen of that diminutive and charming race, the cutititi, and was usually most amiable, only protesting by a plaintive cry whenever its mistress fondled her children or caressed her husband in its presence.

When Jenny Lind was in the United States one of her countless admirers made her a present of a fine young mocking bird in full song. He became exceedingly tame and was wont to perch on the great singer's finger and take seed and fruit from between her lips.

In Minnie Hauck's Swiss home she was always surrounded by flocks of tame pigeons that perched on her shoulder and ate from her hand. They often carried their audacity so far as to enter her bedroom and revel in a good wash in her toilet pitcher, to the great disorganization of the very neat arrangements of her washstand.

The parrot of Mme. Patti is quite a famous fowl, not only on account of the celebrity of its owner, but also because of its own varied accomplishments.

Why Gary Is Gary.

"The formation of the new immense steel company in Pennsylvania, with W. E. Corey as president, refreshes the mind as to the reason why Indiana's magic iron city on Lake Michigan came to be called Gary," said Dr. W. B. Clarke. "When the town was founded it was to be called Corey, after this same Mr. Corey, then head of the United States Steel Corporation. Then occurred the Corey matrimonial episode in New York, which unnecessarily alarmed sensitive capital, and the present name, Gary, was selected. Probably the new company can now have a town named Corey. Judge Mayo of the new town now called Gary, was selected as a committee to wait on Mr. E. H. Gary in New York, now the head of the steel corporation, to obtain his permission to use his name in that connection—and it took two trips to get it. That this is the true reason why Gary is Gary is shown by the fact that this story is told just as Judge Mayo told it to me."—Indianapolis News.

Seeing Snakes in Baltimore.

Even the teetotalers are seeing snakes in Baltimore these days when they pass by the old St. Paul's cemetery, a walled-up, abandoned graveyard at the corner of Lombard and Fremont streets. The place is infested with the reptiles, mostly of a harmless variety. They have their nests in the masses of tangled ivy and shrubbery about the tombs and also under the loose stones and in holes in the walls, through which they wriggle and fall on to the pavement to frighten pedestrians.

Women and children cross on the other side of the street, but the men and boys get sport out of the novelty of hunting snakes in the heart of a big city. Most of the snakes are of the garter variety. Hundreds have been killed and many captured and kept for pets. One man has started business, offering for sale "live snakes direct from St. Paul's cemetery."

Coming Weather Told by Moon.

The moon plays an important part in sign telling. All kinds of weather hang on the changes of the moon. As a matter of fact, you and I rather like to see the new moon over the right shoulder. To be sure, we have no faith in the baleful influence of this sign. Still, it is just as well to be cautious about offending her ladyship. Farmers study the shape of the new moon to determine if the month is to be wet or dry. The Indians used to say that if you could hang a powder horn on the curve of the new moon the month would be generally pleasant. A circle about the moon means a storm approaching. The number of stars within the circle tell the number of days which will elapse before the storm begins. Farmers tell about planting corn in the old of the moon.—Exchange.

"Topaz."

The word topaz comes from the Greek verb signifying to guess. The jewel was brought from the east, and was reported to have come from an island, and men guessed at the location of the island which produced such beautiful gems.

Colds Need Attention.

Internal throat and chest troubles produce inflammation, irritation, swelling or soreness and unless checked at once, are likely to lead to serious trouble. Caught in time Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey loosens the phlegm and destroys the germs which have settled in the throat or nose. It is soothing and healing. Pine is antiseptic; honey is soothing. Both together possess excellent medicinal qualities for fighting germs. Insist on Dr. Bell's Tar-Honey. 25c. All Druggists.

GRADING EGGS FOR MARKET

Extra First-Class Variety Weigh at Least Twenty-Seven Ounces to Dozen and Are Clean.

In large city markets eggs are usually graded into five classes. These grades are designated as follows: Extra firsts, firsts, seconds, thirds, checks and leakers.

Eggs that go into the extra first class weigh at least 27 ounces to the dozen, are clean, of strong shell, and uniform in size, shape and color. The air cell must be no larger than a dime.

Firsts must compare with extra firsts on all points, excepting size. Eggs in this class must weigh at least 24 ounces to the dozen.

Eggs that are classed as seconds weigh at least 22 ounces to the dozen. The air cell may be the size of a quarter dollar. Eggs in this classification must be clean, and uniform in shape and color.

All sound eggs that fall below the three classifications given above are termed thirds. This class takes all eggs that weigh less than 22 ounces to the dozen, all dirty eggs and eggs that show large air cells and dark yolks. The double-yolked eggs and those of poor shape also go into this class.

Checks and leakers are cracked and broken eggs. A check is one cracked, but not sufficiently to allow the contents to escape. A leaker is one broken so badly that the contents escape. Checks and leakers do not stand shipment, and should always be used or marketed at home while strictly fresh.

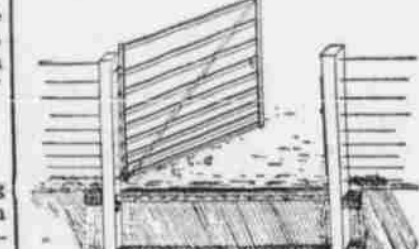

In candling many eggs fall below any of these classifications given above and are a total loss. All rotten eggs, those that show blood rings, mold spots, and those that are badly soiled are unfit for food and are dumped.

In conclusion, it may be stated that the supply of extra firsts and firsts never equals the demand, and that more thirds, checks and leakers are offered than can be disposed of.

HOW TO RAISE BETTER CORN

Vigorous Growth Will Help Plants to Withstand Injury Done by Many Injurious Insects.

Rotation of crops, keeping the land free of weeds and trash of all kinds, late fall plowing of infested lands, and properly nourishing the corn plants, are about the only practical, preventive or remedial measures that can be applied to the insects that attack corn in different ways, according to James Troop, chief in entomology at the Purdue experiment station, in a bulletin on "How to Grow More and Better Corn."

"The effectiveness of certain fertilizers as repellents has not been definitely determined as to extent, but the application of manure and fertilizers which produce vigorous growth will at least help the plants to withstand injury," writes Professor Troop, in commenting upon the difference between fields that had been treated and those that were not given additional food. Illustrations show corn that was fertilized had been able to make good development in spite of the insects, while unfertilized corn had seriously suffered.

GUINEA AND PEACOCK CROSS

Hybrids Resemble Latter in Their General Slender Form, Especially in Head and Neck.

Tests have been made in crossing a guinea fowl with a peacock. The hybrids resemble the peacock in their general slender form, especially in the head and neck, although there was a noticeable absence of all the characteristic appendages of the head and the train was much reduced.

The plumage exhibited striping, which is considered as the primitive type. It was of a dark fawn with black stripes in the lower part of the neck, becoming paler fawn with black specks in the region of the thorax, abdomen and flanks.

War Upon Pain!

Pain is a visitor to every home and usually it comes quite unexpectedly. But you are prepared for every emergency if you keep a small bottle of Sloan's Liniment handy. It is the greatest pain killer ever discovered. Simply laid on the skin—no rubbing required—it drives the pain away. It is really wonderful.

Mervin H. Soister, Berkeley, Cal., writes: "Last Saturday, after tramping around the Panama Exposition with wet feet, I came home with my neck so stiff that I couldn't turn. I applied Sloan's Liniment freely and went to bed. To my surprise, next morning the stiffness had almost disappeared, four hours after the second application, I was as good as new."

Foxes Raised by Cat.

Among a shipment of live foxes from Alaska on the Mariposa are two cross-bred foxes which were raised by an ordinary ranch cat in the Tanana valley, says a Seattle dispatch. The foxes were captured when young, and were nursed by the feline mother until they were old enough to sip condensed milk from a platter. They are now large, fine looking animals. The fox shipment is the largest ever made from Alaska. The shipment two years ago would have been worth $150,000. Now it is valued at $50,000.

Achieving Civilization.

To achieve civilization a race must conquer itself and each individual must master the savage existing within him. The fact that we have not yet succeeded in doing this Doctor Mayer advances as the reason why cultured man has never civilized a primitive race. Under our domination, as is well known, the savage either dies or becomes a worthless parasite or a helpless slave.
